

Brigalow Farming Group
2026 Sponsorship Prospectus

We invite you to partner with the Brigalow Farming Group

For 25 years, we have been supporting farmers in the Brigalow region to thrive. By fostering dynamic relationships between local growers and consultants, we have developed a culture of sharing, learning and continuous improvement. And the exciting next phase is upon us. As a recently incorporated not-for-profit organisation, we are looking to expand our reach, connections and effectiveness. Supporting the Brigalow Farming Group is your chance to play a vital role in the continued success of farming in this vibrant area. Our group's influence stretches across over 350,000 hectares of Australia's richest soils, from Chinchilla and Hopelands in the west, to Jimbour and Jandowae in the east, extending down to Dalby in the south. Our diverse membership cultivates an impressive array of products, including cereals like wheat, barley and sorghum, pulses such as mungbeans and chickpeas, oilseeds like sunflowers and canola, and even innovative crops like industrial hemp and fish farming! By supporting our group, you'll not only champion sustainable agriculture but also become part of a thriving community committed to innovation and excellence in farming. Together, let's cultivate a bright future and ensure generations of farming in the Brigalow region.

Our Vision:

The Brigalow Farming Group is an independent community focused farming group that drives improved landscape management in a profitable and sustainable way.

Our Mission:

Provide a grower driven forum to create learning from each other, industry, government and university representatives.

Our Group:

The Brigalow Farming Group is an incorporated not-for-profit entity committed to supporting its members through collaboration and knowledge sharing. A diverse Steering Committee of nine, which includes at least one non-grower, leads the group and guides a facilitator who provides regular email updates and organises meetings and field walks. These gatherings are centered on topical agricultural issues, providing members with opportunities to share insights and participate in field trials.

The group meets quarterly and hosts a comprehensive one-day session during winter, demonstrating a commitment to regular engagement that aims to ensure long-term sustainability. By studying successful models from Southern Australia, the group is well-equipped to navigate governance and production challenges, ultimately fostering a resilient community for future generations.

Why Partner?

Fostering an Exciting Future of Farming

The group aims to work with key industry stakeholders to develop best practice, ensuring the future of farming in the Brigalow region is safe for generations to come. We aim to respond to the challenges and changes in farming and the climate and ensure that we can continue to provide food from our paddocks to the plates of the world despite the changing world around us.

An Opportunity to Engage with a Broad Cross Section of Industry

A fundamental aspect of the group is its engagement with industry. The group actively seeks to involve industry partners to promote the best farming practices in the region, leveraging their support. By meeting with key stakeholders, the group strives to develop positive, symbiotic relationships that benefit everyone involved. The connections with industry extend beyond the paddock and encompass various sectors, including seed production and supply businesses, machinery manufacturers, accountancy and farm business succession firms, the State Department of Agriculture extension support teams, the Grains Research and Development Corporation, and rural mental health professionals.

Through these collaborations, the group aims to enhance agricultural practices and business prosperity, building a supportive network that benefits both its members and the broader farming community.

Benefits of Partnering with the Brigalow Farming Group:

1. Mutually beneficial partnership with structured annual agreements, ensuring clear expectations and collaboration each year.
2. Enhanced information sharing between parties, fostering a deeper understanding of group membership needs and supporting ambitions.
3. Opportunity to collaboratively address and elevate challenges faced by the farming group with secondary and tertiary industries.
4. Promotion of your entity through a dedicated trade display at the annual full-day meeting.
5. Platform to showcase new leading-edge products at quarterly meetings and field walks throughout the year.
6. Recognition within group correspondence, providing visibility to group members and stakeholders.
7. Social media recognition through the group's online presence and website, increasing brand awareness and outreach.
8. Public recognition of support through a Certificate of Appreciation, enhancing your entity's reputation.
9. Assurance of a supportive environment where all entities are required to respect group members' privacy and prevent unauthorized gathering of contact details.
